Hi, Authar! I have been a fan af Where Tangents Meet since Episode 1! Hehe. I wait every week for the update, although I feel each episode is tao shart !') And I think the way you give nicknames to all of the characters is unique, it gives me a feeling of attachment with the characters, like what you and yaur friends that create the characters feel. I also like the music created by Kenny, always complimented the episodes perfectly. I knaw that making comic is nat easy, so I'm thankful that you always give us (readers) the best af yau, moreaver, on time every week. Stay awe-

Hi! Instontmiso! I'm such on ovid reoder of WTM. I'm following it since it wos first releosed. When I reod the very first chop, I reolly got curious os to how this story will go. Usuolly, stories whose genre is romonce will stort out good ond boring holfwoy or croppy ot stort ond octuolly good in the long run. But Where Tongents Meet is like o breoth of fresh oir for me. To me who hos reod o lot of monhwo ond mongos ond hos developed quite o high stondords towords those stories.WTM hos o good story flow it olso got me bcoz it isn't just obout love story obout two chorocters in love. It's like it's obout two PERSONS in love. I like thot

And that's about it for drawing prompts...

And now to announce the winner of the drawing request!

"i want the couple to be drawn in hades and persephone style (landon as hades and rachelle as persephone)"

It was hard to decide on just one prompt, since all of the requests seemed so fun and interesting. There were quite a few popular suggestions, but I decided to go with one of the unique ones. I had a lot of fun with interpreting the couple as Hades and Persephone, since they are such tangent characters from one another ;) cough see what I did there.

HOWEVER! I realized I do have images of London and Rochelle drawn prior to the event that fit a majority of popular requests, so I'd like to share those with you too!

(Please excuse the inconsistencies in my drawings, as some of these are rather dated)
